SYSTEM STAFF COLLEGE

Peace and Security

The goal of the Peace and Security Programme is to build capacity within the United Nations and its partners to promote international peace and security and transform the new vision of collective security for the 21st century into reality.

In partnership with various United Nations agencies, funds, programmes and departments, the Programme will provide United Nations Staff and partners with the tools to apply conflict analysis as an integrated part of their strategic planning and programming process, and will facilitate the development of conflict-sensitive programming for implementation, monitoring and evaluation of programmes.

In addition, in partnership with the United Nations Department of Safety and Security (UNDSS), the Programme will provide the best possible country-specific security and safety training to enable the United Nations to deliver its various mandates, while ensuring the system's duty of care responsibility for the security and safety of its personnel as a high priority.

Events

- Conflict Prevention Analysis for Action (CPAA) - Central Asia Regional Centre workshop - Ashgabat, Turkmenistan
- UN Safe and Secure Approaches in Field Environments (SSAFE) Regional Training of Trainers workshop - Manila, Philippines

Development Cooperation

The goal of the Development Cooperation Programme is to assist the United Nations system at the country level to play a more strategic role in support of the Millennium Declaration, the Millennium Development Goals and other goals set by United Nations conferences.

The Programme will assist United Nations Resident Coordinators and Country Team members to plan and deliver more strategic and coordinated country programmes in support of national priorities.

Our main partner is UNDG and its Secretariat DGO now called Development Operations Coordination Office (DOCO).

The Programme will support 80 learning events around the world in 2008.

Learning and Training Services

The goal of the Learning and Training Services (LTS) Programme is to provide greater organizational effectiveness as a result of increased staff development and learning competencies, impacting on both UNSSC effectiveness and that of United Nations agencies. In achieving its goal, the programme operates in four strategic areas: (i) supporting coherent staff orientation processes; (ii) nurturing continued development of the United Nations learning community; (iii) managing strategic staff development activities; and (iv) fostering technology supported learning.

The Programme will provide effective learning, training and staff development functions in United Nations agencies that match organizational objectives and individual staff learning needs.

LTS collaborates with UNITAR on Knowledge Systems innovations and with OSAGI on Gender Mainstreaming.
